The University Seal (on Cover)

The official seal of Franciscan University of Steubenville is a symbol used for academic purposes only. It represents the University's Catholic, Franciscan, and educational mission, all of which are symbolized by various components in the seal. The seal, except for the name change to Franciscan University of Steubenville, is an exact version of the original image created in 1946.

Description of the Seal

Emblazoned on the left side of the shield is the coat of arms of the Third Order Regular of St. Francis. The top section shows a clothed arm representing St. Francis of Assisi; the other arm is the arm of our Lord. The hand of Christ bears one of the wounds of his passion; the hand of St. Francis bears the stigmata of his passion. The crossing of the arms forms the Greek letter Chi the first letter of Christ in Greek. Below this is a crown of thorns. This crown, along with the letters OPC (Omnis Passionis Christi, Latin for "All for the passion of Christ") and the three nails of the Passion, distinguishes the Third Order branch of the Franciscan family.

The right side is the coat of arms of Baron Frederick Wilhelm Augustus Von Steuben (from whom the city of Steubenville takes its name), plus a flaming heart to represent the Province of the Most Sacred Heart of Jesus, the division of the Third Order Regular that operates the University.

A band encircles the seal and bears the inscription Franciscan University of Steubenville and A.D. 1946 (founding year of the University) between two crosses.

On the sides of the shield is the motto "with fortitude and prudence." The same motto, Fortitudo et Prudentia, is located on the coat of arms of one of the oldest family names in Ireland, Aeoghan, more recently spelled Egan. Father Dan Egan, TOR, served as the first president of Franciscan University.

HISTORY

At the end of World War II, as young men returned home from the front with limited educational and employment prospects, the Most Reverend John King Mussio, the bishop of the newly created Diocese of Steubenville, issued an invitation to the Franciscan Friars of the Third Order Regular: "Come to our city and establish a college." The friars accepted his invitation, committing an initial $350,000 to what would prove to be a great education venture.

In June 1946, the friars purchased the Knights of Pythias Building at 420 Washington Street. Six months later, on December 10, 1946, the College of Steubenville officially opened its doors to 258 students, most of them veterans and seven of them women.

As enrollment grew, other buildings were bought or leased, until it became evident that proper expansion required enough land for a permanent campus. In 1953, the friars purchased a 40-acre tract on a site overlooking the city of Steubenville, and development of the present hilltop campus began. Although construction was not yet complete, classes began on the new site in 1961. Twenty-five years later, as the school continued to expand both its offerings and reach, gaining an international reputation for excellence in Catholic higher education, the name was officially changed to Franciscan University of Steubenville.

Today, Franciscan University enrolls over 2,500 on-campus students from all 50 states and 18 countries and nearly 900 online students. They choose from over 100 programs including 46 undergraduate degrees, 17 online programs, 12 graduate programs, and a popular study-abroad program in Austria. The University encompasses a 241-acre campus with 26 buildings, plus a multi-building apartment complex housing students and offices for University staff and associated ministries. The University's evangelistic conferences, started in 1975, now reach over 60,000 Catholics through 30-plus events for adults, young adults, and high school youth.

In the spirit of its patron, St. Francis of Assisi, Franciscan University strives, in all things, to heed the words first spoken by Christ to Francis in the little church of San Damiano, "Francis, rebuild my Church." Committed to engaging the culture and renewing the Church, Franciscan sends forth graduates who are having a transforming effect on society as leaders in law, government, business, education, catechesis, evangelization, health care, and more.

For its efforts, Franciscan has been consistently named as an elite First Tier school by U.S. News and World Report's "Guide to America's Best Colleges." It also has received recognition from the Young America's Foundation Top 10 Conservative Colleges List, Kiplinger Personal Finance Magazine, Forbes, and the Cardinal Newman Society's Guide to Choosing a Catholic College.

MISSION

The purpose of Franciscan University is to further the higher education of men and women through programs of liberal, professional, and pre-professional studies leading to the conferral of the baccalaureate and master degrees in the arts and sciences.

It is the further purpose of the University, publicly identified as a Catholic and a Franciscan institution, to promote the moral, spiritual, and religious values of its students. The University is guided by the example and teaching of St. Francis of Assisi. To accomplish this mission, the University embraces the following general policies:

- Intellectual and Faith Community: The specific vocation of a student is both an intellectual and faith development.
- Evangelization: Through academic and co-curricular programs, the University promotes the ongoing and deepening of life in the Lord Jesus Christ, the power of the Holy Spirit, and in the Church and desires to lead others into this way of life.
- Dynamic Orthodoxy: The University embraces Dynamic Orthodoxy as a standard for its life, thereby striving to promote and maintain a balanced commitment to truth and life in its faith community.
- Christian Maturity: The University recognizes that its ultimate purpose is to graduate men and women who are able to take a mature, responsible approach to the Christian life.
- Good Stewardship: The University recognizes that its greatest resources are its people and pledges to treat each person with dignity and respect.

These five general policies are the basis for many specific policies, including:

- Academic: The University is a teaching institution, which values research primarily for advancing the scholarship of the faculty. The University requires some specific courses and some balanced selection of courses to promote liberal arts education and the importance of theological studies and basic philosophy. The University, which observes the 1940 AAUP statement, “guarantees its members academic freedom, so long as the rights of the individual person and of the community are preserved within the confines of the truth and the common good” (Ex corde Ecclesiae, No. 12).
- Student Life: The University desires all its programs to be guided by the law of love. Specifically, the University welcomes entertainment and recreational activities that upbuild the lives of those involved; promotes participation in physical health programs and athletic activities; promotes personal and spiritual development, particularly through faith households; provides, within its means, counseling and other support services as appropriate; supports Christian morality and respect for life; embraces a Catholic worldview; encourages service off campus to the poor as an essential part of a student’s educational experience.

Finally, the University commits itself to this mission believing that it is promoting a normal, mature, Franciscan, Catholic, Christian way of life for its students. It believes that its norms for both academic and co-curricular development are rooted in long and proven tradition and are as relevant today as they were in times past. The University commits itself to ongoing prayer empowered by the Holy Spirit, so that it may be humble before the face of God and receptive to those graces and blessings it needs to serve this mission.
